Overview

Attorney Adam B. Sloane is known for being an aggressive and skillful advocate for his family law clients while having a kind and empathetic touch. He has a unique ability to clearly articulate arguments in a smart, reasonable manner that causes the Judge to take notice. His style works particularly well to manage complex high-conflict litigation cases, including divorce and custody cases that involve domestic violence, substance abuse, DCF, mental health issues, and high net worth estates.

Not only well versed in family law, Adam also specializes in restraining orders and excels in helping clients both obtain and defend against 209A Abuse Prevention Orders and 258E Harassment Prevention Orders.

Adam also has extensive experience in criminal cases involving violent crimes, firearms violations, drug possession/distribution, larceny, tax fraud, and more. Adam has worked criminal cases in both State and Federal Court. Adam has successfully tried bench and jury trials.

Whether you are in a battle for your relationship with your child, a fair division of your marital estate, crucial protection in the form of a restraining order, or for your freedom itself, Adam will tirelessly fight for you.

When Adam is not working, you can often find him active in his community. He is currently on the board of the Laurel School in Brewster, MA.  He has spent time volunteering with the Salvation Army, teaching piano and music lessons to disadvantaged children, and being active in the Big Brothers Big Sisters of America program. Additionally, Adam plays piano and sings, plays tennis, and loves to spend time on the Cape with his wife and extended family.
